Prologue

Watermoon picked up a Chamomile flower, and placed it in front of her apprentice Snowpaw. "What is this herb and what is it used for?" She asked. She was testing her apprentice going through each herb and asking what is it and what it was for.

"It's a flower called" She hesitated for a moment before continuing. "Chamomile?" Watermoon nodded gesturing her to continue. "And it used to treat an injured eye and ease pain?" Snowpaw said unsure of her words.

Watermoon shook her head. "No, your getting mixed up with Celandine. Chamomile is used to to clam a cat from shock or nervous break downs" Snowpaw lowered her head and her tail dropped. "Oh." Sighing heavily she lifted her head to look at her mentor.

"Watermoon how I am ever gonna be a medicine cat if I can't even remember what each herb is used for!" She wined.

"Oh, don't worry about that. Your doing much better than I did when I was an apprentice." Watermoon meowed amusement shining in her eyes. Snowpaw gave out a little laugh at her mentor's joke. Suddenly her heart stung at the thought of her dead mentor Thrushflight. She missed her so much!

"Watermoon are you okay?" Snowpaw asked concern for her mentor's well being. Watermoon shook the thought off. "No, everything fine" She meowed forcing a purr.

"Oh, okay because I was worried for a second!" "Oh don't worry about me!" Watermoon purred, licking her apprentice's ear.

She quickly realized that something was different. Snowpaw's fur was rough and dry and her ear felt much bigger than it should. It tasted weird too, sour almost... kind of like blood.

Watermoon looked down at her apprentice only to scream of fear and shock. This was no longer her hyper little white furred apprentice.

No, it was the body of a dead cat.

The scenery had changed too. Instead of being the medicine cat den Watermoon was in a war zone. She watched as cat came in charging at another cat, the fight all happened to so fast that Watermoon only saw the last scene. The first cat was slicing open it's enemy's belly, worst of all he or she was doing slowly to watch his enemy suffer in pain. "What a horrible way to die!" She thought to herself in distraught.

Suddenly she had been teleported to the top what seemed to be the leader's den. She looked down on the mess of a camp, she could see so many cats getting injured and fighting for their life. Literally, these cats were merciless.

What was more terrifying to Watermoon than the devastating camp was the cats themselves. They're pelts were all either a shiny yellow golden color with white narrowed eyes that looked a lot like half cut circles laid on their sides. Or shadowy pitch black colored cats with red big circles as eyes.

"Black shadowy cats must be the bad cats, and the shiny golden cats must be the good cats" As she watched the war rage on, her attention snapped to the sounds of fighting underneath the leader's den. Hopping down she looked in the leader's den and saw the most confusing thing yet.

There was a golden cat and a black shadowy cat fighting. But the shadowy black cat had the good cats white eyes while the shiny golden cat had the bad cats red circle eyes. "What is going on?" She thought confused.

The golden cat had pinned down the black cat and slowly a crazy grin crept on the golden cat's face. Which was odd, because the only facial features that could be seen with all the other cats were they're eyes.

Watermoon noticed that it was getting darker turning her head and body she watched as the sun slipped down beyond the horizon line. It got dark really quickly, much quicker than normally at least. And that was a good thing (at least that's Watermoon thought) because all the dark shadowy cats were melting...just fading away from existence.

She looked back at the fight that was happening in the leader's den. The golden cat's grin faded and it looked down it's opponent who had a smirk on it's face. "Bye bye" were the last words the golden cat heard as the it also melted away.

Even though it was limping, the black cat was up in a flash making his way to what seemed to be the high Rock. As it walked to the High Rock it passed right through Watermoon, as if she was a spirit. The Sunclan Medicine cat felt tingles go through her body as the cat walked through her.

As she was thinking she didn't notice that a muffled voice had started to speak at the same time the black cat was speaking, finally it caught her attention. "What? What did you say?!" She asked her voice echoing through the sky.

"Beware of the darkness that shall rise when dawn comes but remember, always look closer in the night" The voice said much more clearer and louder this time.

Watermoon blinked and suddenly realized that she was back in reality. "Watermoon are you okay?!" Snowpaw her apprentice screamed directly facing her. Surprised Watermoon only nodded.

"You were acting really weird suddenly. I was asking if you were okay but you acted as if I wasn't there! It was just so strange!" Watermoon tilted her head in confusion. How did she act weird? Snowpaw seemed to understand because she started explaining what had happened.

"Well, after you licked my ear you looked down at me and did a scream that nearly caught half the clan's attention! You were looking at me with pure horror in you eyes. Than suddenly you started looking at a wall. In the reflection of your eyes I could see two cats fighting. It that what happened?" Not allowing Watermoon to answer Snowpaw continued.

"You than looked down at the ground as if you were looking down on something. Afterwards you hopped forward and turned you head looking down at a wall again with those same horror filled eyes. You stayed like that for a while until you turned you head and looked at the other wall. Than you shivered and looked to the right and than looked up at the ceiling and said: "What? What did you say?" You stayed like that for a moment and than finally woke up from whatever happened to you!" Snowpaw meowed gasping for breath at the end because of speaking to fast.

"Ohm Snowpaw clam down! I'm fine I just-just had a weird daydream" Watermoon lied. She didn't want her apprentice getting involved with these sorts of things yet.

Snowpaw looked at Watermoon with disbelief filling her eyes. "Watermoon, I know that you had a dream with Starclan. What did they say?" Snowpaw asked looking directly at her mentor. Watermoon took a deep breath unsure whether to tell or not. "Watermoon come on I am gonna be visiting the Mooncave soon, if i knew about the omen or prophecy you just had I could alert you on any new information" Snowpaw pointed out. "I'm you apperntice I have the right to know!" Snowpaw meowed. Watermoon sighed and look out of the medicine cat den exist.

"Beware of the darkness that shall rise when dawn comes but remember, always look closer in the night"

Annnnd that is a wrap!

So I edited this part but feel free to correct me on anything grammer spelling etc. I did wrong :) But if someone has already corrected me than please don'tdo it again, thank you :) So anyways please tell me what were your reactions when things suddenly took a dark turn? When Snowpaw's body transformed into a dead cat's body what was you reaction? Hmmm? Surprised,excited,confused,scared???? Tell me all about in the comment section!!! And please remember to vote or comment! Let me know you there!!! DON'T BE A GHOST READER!!!!

Bye!

Chapter 1- Unexpected Fight

First chapter whoop whoop!

Night walked into the forest letting the soft green grass tingle his paws. Taking a deep breath he in hailed the scents of the beautiful forest. The birds were singing happily while squirrels ran from tree to tree and mice shuffled through the forest floor scavenging for food.

"It's the prefect territory! No foxes,badgers,humans or dogs near by. Their's plenty of prey here too!" Night added. Lux nodded happily. "But don't get too excited, we still don't know this territory" His sister reminded.

Night's smile vanished and was replaced with a frown. "Oh come it's gonna be fine!" Lux rolled her eyes. "That's what you said last time" She pointed out.

"Fine,fine. Come on now let's explore the territory!" Night meowed quickly forgetting his sister's concerns.

As they were walking Lux started up a conversation. "Your favorite prey is Robin right?" Night nodded. "Well, what if Robin never existed? Than what would be your favorite food?" She asked. Night though for moment. "Vole, their equally delicious!" He finally replied licking his lips. Lux gave out a mrow of amusement.

"I am gonna scout up a head. Stay here, I can smell prey!" She meowed. Night shook his head and sighed. "Your still hungry? I thought that squirrel filled you up!" Lux smacked her paw on Nights head(Don't worry it didn't hurt him). "If I'm hungry, I'm hungry!" She meowed, in a sassy voice.

Night sighed once more and sat down wrapping his tail across his paws. There was no way he could ever match his sister's sassiness.

He watched as Lux took a deep breath in hailing the scents. She walked a few steps forwards than quickly turned around walking to a couple of bushes, Night watched as Lux's tail vanished into the green leaves.

She returned a few minutes later with a small mouse dangling in her mouth. Though she was pleased with her catch it was obvious that she had trouble catching it. Her was ruffled and dirty with mud and thorns sticking out of it. Plus the mouse was laying in a awkward (Can we just take a moment and appreciate that I remembered how to spell 'awkward'?! XD yes I'm not that good a spelling) position.

"Did you have trouble catching it?" He asked as Lux took a bite out of her kill.

"Yeah it was kinda hard. The mouse some how knew I was there, so when it was about to run I pounced but it slipped from my claws. Luckily it was limping from my first pounce so when it started it was easy to catch up to it." She meowed swallowing down a piece of meat.

"And what happened to your fur?" He asked. "The darn mouse ran right through some muddy bushes." She explained quickly. Suddenly she stopped eating and narrowed her eyes, her was bristling and her claws were sheathed. "Lux what's wrong?" Night asked concerned.

"Some cats here, Night" She whispered. Night eyes widened in shock and fear. Smelling the air he realized that his sister was correct.

"You're right" he whispered back unsheathing his claws. "Of course I'm right" Lux meowed. Night didn't have time to be annoyed by Lux so he let the sentence slip by... this time.

Night and Lux both knew that if they were going up against skilled fighters, they would lose. But they couldn't just give up like that, could they?

Before Night could think anymore the pelt of a gray cat pounced at him. He felt a raging pain in his stomach and saw that his opponent was clawing his belly. Giving out a yowl of pain he rolled over to get away from the cat only to be struck from the behind.

Teeth sank deep into his scruff forcing Night to scream in agony. Night used his back legs to try and kick off the cat, surprisingly it worked. "The only reason that worked was because I caught my behind attacker off guard. Now they have full attention and are ready for anything" Night thought as he looked at his attackers.

He walked backwards and finally caught full view of his opponents. One was a young gray she-cat and another was a much older white she cat with orange patches on her fur.

"Come on Whiskerspirit these rouges don't stand a chance against us four!" "Four? Of course, there more that's why Lux is occupied!"

"What are you doing on our territory?" The white she cat snarled. Night didn't reply. "Not much of a talker are you?" The gray she-cat huffed. "Well than we'll just make you talk!" The same she-cat meowed pouncing. Night barely dodged the she-cats claws.

"Cinderpaw you mouse-brain!" The older she-cat growled. Night quickly took advantage of the situation and sunk his claws in the she-cats back. His opponent yowled in pain as Night tried sinking his claws deeper.

He felt teeth suddenly sink in his scruff and pulled him out. "No!" Night thought as the she-cat threw him and landed with a large 'thump' on the ground, right next to Lux.

"Night!" Lux meowed horrified at the sight of her brother. "I'm okay" He said weakly trying to get up. "No, he's clearly not okay" A low voice growled. Night and Lux both looked to see a large black and white tom.

"Look we've hurt you enough, I think it's time that you get off our territory-" He was cut off by the small gray she-cat.

"Wait Blackwave let's think this over. The rouges look like their alone! It would be cruel to chase them off! We should bring them back to camp and report them to the leader" Cinderpaw insisted.

The black and white tom shook his head. "No, Cinderpaw we can't do that we don't know if these rouges have any back up or not-"

"We're alone" Lux meowed firmly. Night was surprised why Lux would want to go with these cats, but he quickly realized that it would mean a chance at getting healed. "It's too dangerous." The black and white tom growled glaring straight at Night's sister.

"I think we should give it a try." The white she-cat meowed. "Plus if there were any other cats as back up for these two we would have already smelled them" Added a small dark blue tom from behind.

Growling the black and white tom started walking forwards "Fine, let's get them to Daisystar"

"Come, we're going back to camp" The white she-cat meowed following the black and white tom's lead. "I can't wait to see how every cat reacts to these rouges, especially the queens and elders" Cinderpaw meowed her eyes full of amusement as she started walking, the others close behind. "Or the warriors and kits!" The dark blue tom meowed.

Night's eyes widened as the two apprentices names the different ranks. Were they really so many cats living in this forest? "Cinderpaw, Juniperpaw and rogues you come on walk faster" The white she-cat meowed. "We have names ya know" Lux muttered. Increasing their pace Night and Lux both caught up to the white she cat and apprentices.

"My name is Cinderpaw and the tom's name is Juniperpaw." The gray she-cat meowed suddenly."We're apprentices training to be warriors" Juniperpaw added puffing out his chest fur.

"So what are your names?" Cinderpaw asked. "Lux" "Cool name" Juniperpaw meowed. "Thanks"

"And you?" He asked turning his head towards the black tom. The question had surprised Night but he still answered. "Night"

"Hmmm, that name suits you" Juniperpaw commented. Cinderpaw nodded.

"Yeah, your fur is as black as the night sky"

Annnnd that's a wrap!

I hope you all enjoyed the first chapter the next will be out in 1 or 2 weeks :) soooo sorry if i am late but school is starting soon :(... so yeah umm... I am gonna call my fans royals, because of my username. Humnathegreat. I just feel like when somebody calls me that i am a royal. But not a queen or princess. Just, a ya know a royal (yeah that doesn't make sense stupid)... so yeah... umm...

Bye Royals!

Chapter 2-Getting Healed

As Night and Lux walked in the camp he could feel cats staring at him and his sister, the quite talking was now replaced with hushed whispers.

He gulped as he saw one cat glare at him with sheathed claws. He nearly bumped into Lux's back as she suddenly stopped. Night sat down and wrapped his tail around his paws, it was sort of a habit.

He looked around and saw a frail old cat walk out of a moss and leaf covered den. There was a small kit excitingly hoping around who seemed to be her mother.

His attention snapped to a light golden she-cat. Her fur covered her strong muscles and Night was even scared to think about her claws.

She was currently standing on a large rock that looked long enough to touch the sky. She looked down at the cats, she was looking especially close at Night and Lux. The light golden she-cat jumped down from the rock and landed gracefully on the ground.

"Blackwave,Whiskerspirit,Cindepaw and Juniperpaw why have you brought rogues into our camp?"

Blackwave stepped forwards and dipped his head before speaking. "Daisystar, we found these rouges hunting on our territory-" Blackwave was interrupted by angry hisses and snarls coming from rest of the clan.

Night watched in awe as Daisystar raised her tail and the cats stopped talking. "How does she do that? Why do they respect her so much?"

"So we attacked them but these cats have very little experience with fighting and we were able to take them down easily." Night's licked his chest in embarrassment, but he knew what Blackwave said was true. "I was going to chase them off the territory but, these cats are young and would die with out help from Watermoon. So my patrol insisted that we take them back to camp and let them you decide what to do.' Blackwave explained.

Daisystar nodded "What you did was right if these cats were chased off our territory they would surely die, and I doubt that they know anything about herbs. Watermoon will treat them and afterwards I will decide what will become of these cats." Night was relieved that he was getting healed.

A sleek sliver she-cat crept out of her den and faced the rouges. "Come this way" She meowed pointing with her tail to a den. As he entered a wave of funky smells hit him. He looked around the den and saw that on one side there were a bunch of plants. He sat down and turned his head around only to be nose to nose with Cinderpaw.

"Hi!"

"Ah!" Night meowed and he fell backwards and hit the ground. "Hey be care full!" A small white she cat meowed crossly. "Sorry Snowpaw" Cinderpaw meowed. "Uh, yeah sorry" Night meowed as he got back up.

"Why are you here?" Night asked and he got comfortable on the moss he was sitting on. She turned sideways to reveal the two bloody cuts on her back.

"You did this to me remember?" Cinderpaw meowed turning back. Night nodded, he knew that he had hurt her but he didn't expect it to be this bad.

"Stay still Cinderpaw this might sting a little" Snowpaw meowed as she pressed down some a chewed plant onto Cinderpaw's back.

"Hello, excuse me?" Night turned around to see the sleek sliver she facing him. "My name is Watermoon I am the healer of the clan. I'm going to treat your injuries and than your sister's. " Night only nodded.

He watched as Watermoon took a clump of grass and started applying it around Night's scruff. He flinched slightly as the grass touched his bloody scruff. He sighed as Watermoon went to her plants and came back with a bright orange flower,a oak leaf, and some cobweb.

There was a lot to do.

After Night was treated he was covered in herbs and leafy poultice. Lux had commented that he smelled quite weird and Night had replied saying: "You do too!"

"Can I go outside please?!" Night begged as Watermoon placed back the spare herbs. Watermoon sighed and than nodded. "You can go outside but don't be reckless!" She ordered. Night and Lux nodded and got up ready to go outside. They were right by the exit when Watermoon suddenly stopped him. "Wait what's your name?" Night looked at Watermoon face to face.

"Why?"

"No reason"

"Night"

Annnnd that's a wrap!

Sorry this chappie sucked but the next one will be more interesting I promise! It will be out in the next 2 weeks and a half, i'm sorry but i am need to prepare for my new school! So yeah... ummm... remember to not be a ghost reader vote and comment and > > > > > > >

#Nomorebullying

Hi!! No, this is not a update BUT PLEASE READ IT!!! This is the #Nomorebullying challenge. It's really easy to do and takes a short amount of time (I did it around in 20 mins)!!! Just write in 90 words how you deal with bullying. Than you have to shout out 7 friends and challenge them to this challenge... but instead of making new friends I play video games... YAY! This does not mean I don't have any friends but I only have a few that I think care enough to do the challenge...So yeah here is how I deal with bullying... in 92 words! (IT WAS A MISTAKE ALRIGHT):

If someone bullies my reaction would be.... well it actually depends on what type of bullying your talking about. If I am physically (hit,pushed,beat up) being bullied, I will stay FAR away from the bullies and afterwards tell a teacher and y parents. If I am verbally (called mean words,insulted etc.) bullied than I will most likely insult them back (I AM SASSY SO BEWARE). But if the person (people) keep bullying me the first thing I will think is that: "They're human too". They have their own problems and are probably taking it out on other people.

please read this in a announcer voice And now I Humnathegreat will say challenge 3 of my friends to do this challenge too!!!:

Daisy101790 (she has already done it),Zoralivelove and last but not least Sliverheart6354171Thanks for reading, I goodbye!!!
